Citizen of the World!
KWMR radio 89.9
Saturday, Dec 29, 9:AM

Do you know that Charlie has lived in more countries than most people have even dreamed of visiting? Charlie Docherty is well known as artist, musician, KWMR radio personality and at Bolinas People's Store, husband and father, and less well known- he is a real citizen of the world.

When he was my guest on my radio show Original Minds previously, we talked about how he left Scotland after graduating from art school and began fourteen years of living, learning and traveling from the Middle and Far East, Pacific Asia to Australia and more. This time we pick up the tale as he is drove from North America to Argentina and up to Brazil where he met Magda – a character who –much later-would introduce him to Bolinas, after more years living in West Africa, traveling to South Africa to Egypt, Ethiopia and many more adventures. Then, out of the whole world, how he chose to settle in Bolinas.

NEW YEAR'S EVE AT THE BCC

2017 is not a year we will soon forget, although many of us would like to. And this year we are ringing it out twice just to make sure it goes. With all due respect for a year which marked the passing of some people and things we would have liked to have kept around, and that slid us a few bad cards that we would rather not have to keep holding, I would like to see 2017 all the way to door. And I would love to see you standing there with me waving goodbye to it too.

To make that easier on families the BCC will have TWO BALL DROPS, TWO BANDS and a price that doesn't kick you in the pants. We start off with the Psychedelic Seniors (some local folks that were around for some bad years and know how to handled them and not lose their cool). If you want to bring the kids down and get home before the folks at Time Square you can ring in the New Year at 12 ET with the whole family. (Just bring your own bells and horns). If you want to stay until the end of the year you can stay and dance with JUST FRIENDS for the West Coasts official time. Either way you probably want dig out your own official dispelling/welcoming bell just to make sure 2017 knows when to go and 2018 knows where to come.

Schehera and I are decorating for a coming year full of SILVER linings and GOLDEN dawns. You don't have to wear a mask unless you want to, either way you will be covered by the Official Bolinas Witness Protection Program and as long as you don't drink and drive, we guarantee your safety from angry gods and frog plagues.

Small cheese and fruit plates will be for sale at the bar.

Be there.

Pizza from Stellina and gelato from Double 8 included in ticket price.

Fresh from sold out screenings at this year's Mill Valley Film Festival! From the Bay Area to Italy, Matteo Troncone searches for the meaning of life in this engaging, intimate documentary. Is it any surprise to discover that pizza is the answer? Writer, director, cinematographer, editor, and star Troncone begins his fascinating and philosophical first-person travelogue with no job, no relationship, and no home. While living in his VW van on the streets of San Francisco, he decides there is only one thing to do: trace his roots to Naples and learn the secret of Neapolitan pizza. Once there, he discovers the art of Arrangiarsi, the process of arranging yourself to make something from nothing. We meet a colorful crew of characters, from street artists to pizza makers, who find a way to live and love in the most joyful ways, regardless of circumstance. This delightful documentary combines a healthy smattering of foodie passion, intense Italian history, and quirky Neapolitans to tell the tale of one man's journey to find himself, and the greatest pizza on earth. ## LAST WEEKEND OF THE YEAR SALE

2 DAYS ONLY

SAT - SUN 1-5:30 PM

BOLINAS GALLERY

52 WHARF RD.

So I have 10 basic rules. I'm going to walk you through all of them, but honestly, if you just choose one of them and master it, you'll already enjoy better conversations.

Number one: Don't multitask. And I don't mean just set down your cell phone or your tablet or your car keys or whatever is in your hand. I mean, be present. Be in that moment.

Number two: Don't pontificate. You need to enter every conversation assuming that you have something to learn.

The famed therapist M. Scott Peck said that true listening requires a setting aside of oneself. And sometimes that means setting aside your personal opinion. He said that sensing this acceptance, the speaker will become less and less vulnerable, and more and more likely to open up the inner recesses of his or her mind to the listener.

Number three: Use open-ended questions. If you put in a complicated question, you're going to get a simple answer out. If I ask you, "Were you terrified?"

I was" or "No, I wasn't." "Were you angry?" "Yes, I was very angry." Let them describe it. They're the ones who know. Try asking them things like, "What was that like?" "How did that feel?" Because then they might have to stop for a moment and think about it, and you're going to get a much more interesting response.

Number four: Go with the flow. That means thoughts will come into your mind, and you need to let them go out of your mind. We're sitting there having a conversation with someone, and then we remember that time that we met Hugh Jackman in a coffee shop. And we stop listening. Stories and ideas are going to come to you. You need to let them come and let them go.

Number five: If you don't know, say that you don't know. Talk should not be cheap.

Number six: Don't equate your experience with theirs. It's not the same. All experiences are individual. And, more important, it is not about you. You don't need to take that moment to prove how amazing you are or how much you've suffered. Conversations are not a promotional opportunity.

Number seven: Try not to repeat yourself. It's condescending, and it's really boring, and we tend to do it a lot.

Number eight: Stay out of the weeds. Frankly, people don't care about the years, the names, the dates, all those details that you're struggling to come up with in your mind. They care about what you're like, what you have in common.

Number nine: This is not the last one, but it is the most important one. Listen. I cannot tell you how many really important people have said that listening is perhaps the No. 1 most important skill that you could develop. Calvin Coolidge said, "No man ever listened his way out of a job."

Number 10: One more rule, and it's this one: Be brief.

Stephen Covey said it very beautifully. He said: "Most of us don't listen with the intent to understand. We listen with the intent to reply."

All of this boils down to the same basic concept, and it is this one: Be interested in other people.
