A WEEKEND IN PARADISE

This weekend is my favorite Bolinas benefit, the Community Center's Art & Garden. Besides having "Art" and "Garden"—two of my favorite things, it is an event made to hang out and socialize. Two and a half days to get together and chat in a beautiful environment with great food and drink available.

I'm especially looking forward to this year as I am not in charge (though I have been contributing a lot to this event). Not being in charge means I can go back to enjoying mightily, at which I am much better. I am also looking forward to this year as I really like birds as well, and we have a real expert here in town – Keith Hansen – who is kindly presenting his new work to us on Friday evening, and bird walks on Sat. & Sun. mornings. Walk with Keith, and then come for lunch at the center.

Oysters from West Marin, home made and donated, quiche, tacos and other goodies await.

The art contributions are looking really fine this year (this is the 12th time this wonderful event has happened) my contribution has taken me into new territory. A Bluebird in Paradise is the name of my piece. There are lots of other great items in the silent auction, plus a lot of beautiful plants for sale thanks to Las Baulinas Nursery.

Please come down, support the Heart of Bolinas and join that blue bird in paradise.

Pouring the footing for the Labyrinth way in the back yesterday at the former Burnt Park.
To My Patients at Coastal Health Alliance,

As many of you know I will be moving to Alabama in May. My last day at CHA will be May 11th. It has been a difficult decision as I have grown to cherish the community where I work and live. You are friends as well as patients and it has been an honor to share the moments in your life. I know that moving back to the South sounds drastic to some of you, but I grew up on the Gulf Coast. Living there, I will be closer to New Orleans which has always had a piece of my heart that has grown steadily since hurricane Katrina. There is no comparison to the beauty of West Marin, but the ideas of conservation, recycling and land preservation have finally spread to the rest of the country and I plan to keep these ideas alive in our new location.

I feel certain that the Coastal Health Alliance will continue to serve as your medical home and will work to meet your needs. Fortunately, I am leaving a group of very dedicated health care providers at CHA who are ready to continue your care. Marty Frankel (Nurse Practitioner) and Diney Wrona (Physician Assistant) will cover my practice during the time it takes to recruit a new physician to serve the community. Both are highly qualified and have years of experience with Coastal Health Alliance. Dr. Anna O’Malley, who many of you already know, will also continue to provide excellent and personal care for residents in Bolinas and Stinson Beach. Please feel free to call any of our health center locations if you have questions or to make an appointment.

Thank you for letting me serve as your physician.

Best regards,

Kristin Kalmbach, MD

READING TO JOHN

On Tues. 4/8 at 10 am on KWMR (89.9) I’ll read from Laura Crozier’s “Small Beneath the Sky,” a prairie memoir. I came upon this paperback at the extraordinary Monroe’s Books in Victoria, BC and wanted to bring back a quintessential piece of Canadian literature. Now I can share it with you. Crozier’s a poet and this beautifully-written book reflects her great powers of observation as well as her groundedness in hardscrabble prairie life. A jewel!

Geography of Hope in Bolinas!

Since 2008, the Point Reyes Bookstore in Pt Reyes has sponsored the remarkable literary conference called "The Geography of Hope." Those of you who have attended know it has been an almost unbearably splendid event, with amazing speakers, incredible local food, and local artists as well. I got to eat lunch with one of my heroes William Least Heat Moon, who wrote Blue Highways and PrarieErth, joke around with orchardist and writer Mas Masumoto, and listen to others I have admired from afar. Each gathering has left indelible memories.

So we are thrilled to be part of a new format for the Geography of Hope, which will include a series of events over the next two years, under the rubric "The Practice of the Wild," beginning with a workshop in the Larner Seeds Demonstration Garden titled:

"A Way In"

Held Saturday, May 19 from 10 am to 3 pm.

at Larner Seeds, 230 Grove Road between Elm & Alder

"Learn how to bring wild nature home, with these two speakers ranging from the poetic to the practical and back again, PLUS native-plant-based desserts and 10% off native plants purchased at the event."

This day will include speaker Arvind Kumar, a California Native Plant Society Board member, who will describe his fascinating journey from Varanasi, India – considered by Hindus to be the most sacred spot on earth – to becoming a mover and shaker protecting habitat in open spaces and promoting California’s native plants in open spaces and public and private gardens. Judith Lowry will speak of her almost 35-year-long journey in this field, with concrete examples from the one-acre Bolinas Demonstration Garden in Bolinas – a case study for the joys of bringing nature home through habitat restoration.

$40/pre-registration required, seats filling rapidly.

Have you waved today?

Due to a variety of circumstances that I won’t bore you with, I recently got a new (to me) car. When my friends and family asked what was the best thing about said new car, I responded, “The Anonymity!”

I’m not sure if this happens in other small towns, but here we have a propensity to wave each other as we pass one another on the street. As you may know (or just as likely don’t know), a few years ago another Honda Pilot arrived on the scene. Same color, same make, same pseudo surf racks as my Honda Pilot. Well, the new pilot owner and I shared many a laugh over the fact that people that she didn’t know were waving at her and vice versa. So funny (I know, it’s kind of one of those “you had to be there” stories). The reality is that it’s stressful to wave. Let me explain – there is the worry that you didn’t get waved to by that person who you may have offended recently, are they mad at you? There’s that guy that you met at a party and gee, you don’t really like him, but he seems to like you and if you don’t wave at him are you sending a message or just being mean? If you do wave at him, is that then sending another type of message? (this hasn’t happened to me in over 20 years as I am married, but it could happen to others). And then of course there are the people that you were friends with but gee you had a falling out and now it’s painfully obvious that you are indeed not waving to each other. So, as you can see, I think waaaayy too much about this kinda stuff and sometimes I run myself ragged just driving to the store.

As I stated my love of newly occurring anonymity to my 14 and 10 year old sons, they said, “oh my god, you adults are so weird!”. Tis true, tis true (I think it might just be me, not adults in general, but hey, you never know). I know that I will start to become recognized soon and the waving will commence, and honestly at that point I’m sure I will be missing all those upturned palms and relish getting my waves once again. So if you see me in my new car, don’t hold back cuz I’ll be needing a nice, friendly wave at that point.

Anyhow, why am I regaling you with this insight into my crazy head? To tell you that the Bolinas Stinson Beach Middle School Talent show is coming really soon. What does my waving story have to do with the talent show, you ask? Nothing. I just needed a vehicle (get it, vehicle, hehe) for blabbing on about me, myself and I.

But, really, there is a Talent Show coming up and I want you to be there! Tickets are in the hands of the 8th grade students (Waverly, Pema, Nalani, Owen, Leonardo, Ryder, Max, Orie, Hunter, and snatched) and ready to be sold. You can also call me at 868-2043 to get them. The kids are working on some fantastic stuff and I think you are going to be very pleased with the show.
