Audubon Canyon Birds

For many years, the Egrets and Blue Herons have built their nests in Audubon Canyon in late March or early April. Last year, Keith Hansen told me, there were only seven nests built there and unfortunately an owl came and ate the eggs, so no fledglings were hatched !

Leslie Melendy, of the Audubon Canyon office, told me that normally there are 57 nests constructed in the early Spring in the Canyon, but NOT ONE NEST was built there this year and they have no idea why?

WHAT a SURPRISE to find that ALL THE BIRDS had MIGRATED to BOLINAS this year and put their nests in the large Pine trees above the Kent property and Smiley's. Keith, humorously said, "maybe they like the MUSIC coming from Smiley's !".

A young woman we met on Wharf Road from Audubon had taken a large photograph of the birds' nests in the Pine trees above and carefully marked WHERE all the 52 nests were. I wondered what happened to the 5 other nests that were part of the 57 count?

These beautiful birds have always been such an integral part of our lives here, that it really is a wonderful mystery of why they have chosen to live here this year ! Magi has seen the baby Egrets in the lagoon already. What a gift of sheer delight for all of us !

Audubon will be open for hikes and the gift store this September, Leslie informed me.

Fukushima Yoga* or Solartopia?

THAT is the Question...

Green-Powered or Greed-Powered?

We still have a chance to choose.

But we have to get informed AND we have to get organized.

That's the empowering and galvanizing message investigative journalist, author and long-time green energy advocate Harvey Wasserman will deliver as part of an August 10 event in Pt. Reyes, co-sponsored by culturalpotholes.com and eons.net - The Ecological Options Network.

With a respectful bow to California's pioneering Ecotopia author, Ernest Callenbach, Wasserman has coined the term 'solartopia' for his vision of a green-powered earth - based on energy conservation, efficiency and renewables. (For more: solartopia.com.)

A co-founder of the seminal, east-coast anti-nuclear group Clamshell Alliance and Musicians United for Safe Energy (MUSE), Wasserman has been a major voice debunking the fantasy that nuclear power is a viable energy source and, more recently, 'a solution for climate change.'

The Program

Wasserman will keynote an event at the Dance Palace Church Space at 5:30 on the 10th which will also include:

A Message from Co-Sponsors

Here's what culturalpotholes.com Co-Directors Donna Sheehan and Paul Raffell have to say about the program aimed at raising nuclear consciousness in West Marin:

Hello Everyone!

Here's a very important event for all of us living on the West Coast.

There are multiple nuclear threats to the water, the air, our food and future generations of our children from facilities that are aging, leaking and have built-in design faults. It gives "nuclear family" a whole new meaning!

From Hanford, WA to San Diego, plus Fukushima and the 47,500 drums of nuclear waste that were dumped near the Farallones, a radioactive crisis is threatening the West Coast, and we need to learn and prepare.

Please come to this important event at 5.30pm, August 10th at the Church Space to hear the latest and to discuss with experts and each other the solutions and preparations we need to make. There will be great guest speakers and a sneak preview video!

Please RSVP to Mercede at mercede115@gmail.com or 415-488-7081, so we know how many hors d'oeuvres we need!

Dear Friends,

This Friday afternoon (8/1) Lucian will be performing the part of Troilus in William Shakespeare's Troilus & Cressida as part of the Marin Shakespeare Summer Youth Program. What is Troilus & Cressida you ask?

Troilus and Cressida is a tragedy by William Shakespeare, believed to have been written in 1602. It has been described as "one of Shakespeare's problem plays." The play ends on a very bleak note with the death of the noble Trojan Hector and destruction of the love between Troilus and Cressida. Throughout the play, the tone lurches wildly between bawdy comedy and tragic gloom, and theatre-goers have frequently found it difficult to understand how one is meant to respond to the characters. However, elements of the play (the most notable being its constant questioning of intrinsic values such as hierarchy, honour and love) have often been viewed as distinctly "modern".

Or the Netflix description:

Shakespeare's play about love and honor during the Trojan War. When his lover, Cressida, is traded to the Greeks, soldier Troilus tries to rescue her from the enemy. Meanwhile, the Greeks' only hope lies in the hands of Achilles, who wants out of the war. The tides turn when Achilles' best friend is killed, and the Greeks stage a brutal ambush on a single Trojan hero (Troilus' brother).

The performance takes place:

@ 2:30pm
Bellrose Theater in San Rafael
On 5th St. between D & E.

The showing is FREE.

Come one, come all.

Wishing you a great rest of summer.

pax,
Lisa Townsend

FDA warns against lidocaine for teething infants. USA today, July 3rd 2014

It's hard for parents to stand idly by when their baby has a sore mouth from teething. But using prescription medicines such as viscous lidocaine may harm rather than help, the U.S. Food and Drug Administration says.

The FDA has issued a warning against using the gel-like prescription lidocaine 2% solution to treat infants and children while they're teething. Viscous lidocaine is a local anesthetic in a kind of syrup, commonly prescribed to adults to treat pain from mouth or throat ulcers that can occur during chemotherapy. But it is dangerous and potentially fatal to use on teething children ages 6 months to 3 years, according to FDA's drug safety communications report.

Viscous lidocaine is not approved by the FDA to treat teething in infants and young children, and accidental ingestion of the drug has been shown to result in seizures, severe brain injury and heart problems in children.

Symptoms can also include jitteriness, confusion, vision problems, vomiting, falling asleep too easily and shaking. And the symptoms may increase the risk of choking or breathing in food, according to FDA's consumer health report.

The FDA is requiring a "Boxed Warning," its strongest, to be added to the drug label.

"Topical pain relievers and medications that are rubbed on the gums are not necessary or even useful because they wash out of the baby's mouth within minutes, and they can be harmful," says pediatrician and FDA pathologist Ethan Hausman.

The FDA found 22 cases of serious adverse reactions to oral viscous lidocaine in children in 2014. Of those, six resulted in death, three were life-threatening, 11 required hospitalization, and two required medical intervention without hospitalization.

The cases were often caused by parents giving additional doses beyond what was prescribed or applying the medicine incorrectly. Other times, the lidocaine was accidentally ingested or there was a prescribing error.

U.S. pharmacies continue to dispense lidocaine to children younger than 2. More than 36,000 children up to age 2 received prescriptions for lidocaine 2% oral viscous products from U.S. outpatient retail pharmacies in 2012, according to data collected from IMS Health, an information and technology services company for the health care industry. That accounted for about 4% of all patients who received dispensed prescriptions for lidocaine.

Two years ago, the FDA also recommended that parents not use benzocaine products to treat teething children without the supervision of a health care professional. Benzocaine is a local anesthetic and can be found in over-the-counter products such as Anbesol, Hurricaine, Orajel and Orabase. Benzocaine is potentially fatal to children and can lead to a reduction in oxygen in the bloodstream, according to the FDA's consumer report.

"Teething is a normal phenomenon; all babies teethe," Hausman said in the FDA consumer health report.

THE FDA'S TIPS TO TREAT TEETHING BABIES:

- Gently rub or massage the child's gum with your finger.
- Chill a teething ring or wet washcloth in the refrigerator for a short time. Make sure it's cool and not cold like an ice cube. If it's too cold, it can hurt the child's gums. The coolness soothes the gums by dulling the nerves.
- Supervise children so they don't accidentally choke on the teething ring or washcloth.
