MEETING OF THE BOLINAS-STINSON SCHOOL FACILITIES COMMITTEE

Tuesday, May 8, tomorrow, 3:15 in the 3rd grade classroom, Bolinas Canyon, the communities of Bolinas and Stinson Beach are invited to participate in discussion of facilities for inclusion of preschool at the Stinson site. One possible plan involves reconstruction of the Bolinas Campus to include a gymnasium on the site where the Quesada and art shops now stand. The shops would be rebuilt along with two additional classrooms. This would require a Bond measure be passed by the communities. NOW IS THE TIME TO PAY ATTENTION.

MONDAY'S SCHOOL PRE-MAY DAY. turned into a beautiful sunny day, starting the week with a spring celebration at the Stinson campus, complete with Maypole. Bob Demmerle got the ribbons in place on the tether ball pole, and the primary grades did the dancing around it. Amyn Owen, the school music teacher, guided each of the kindergartens through 5th grade classes - along with the too-sweet-for-words visiting preschoolers - through an appropriate homage to spring song and dance, their beautifully handmade wreaths of ribbons and vines and flowers, bobbing and bouncing around on their heads as they danced. The flowers were gorgeous and the headaddresses were made by the children, with artful help by parents, aides, and teachers. Ned and I wore ours as we accompanied the children on fiddle and squeezebox, until we all ended up at the playground for the chaos of color the maypole provided. Then there was pizza from the kitchen by Sukey, or bag lunch if families brought one, and we all ate and enjoyed the day.

The week ended with two big Cinco de Mayo events in town; a walk-a-thon and party at Mesa Park, sponsored by the Bolinas Preschool; and the Burnish Art and Garden Extravaganza “For the Birds”, at the Community Center. In between, the beach was calling.

Art & Gardens started off Friday evening with an amazing presentation by our own Bird Whisperer, Keith Hansen, whose movie on our local bird species was spectacular. He will be the guest tonight at HOME GROWN at the firehouse, so don't miss your another chance if you missed him.

A and G events continued through Sat. and Sun. with an awesome bird costume parade (that sanctified the new downtown park), oysters, tacos, salad, quiches, live chickens, plants from Baulines Nursery, and many auction items including beautiful local paintings. Wonderful.

In the middle of the week, there was Tuesday's May 1st School Board meeting, which covered a lot of territory. The Board moved on several important matters. The big action was a Public Hearing and then the passing of a resolution to authorize settlement of negotiations with our excellent employees, showing May Day solidarity with them and appreciation for their good work by ratifying two year contracts for all bargaining units on campus.

Two of the other resolutions passed by the Board might bring out more discussion. One was an approval of the development of an Early Childhood Education Program that would move the District in the direction of universal preschool - an expansion to include 3 and 4 year olds, making a preschool through 8th grade district. As I understand it, this would start with an invitation to the BC PUD preschool to use space at the Stinson Campus, (as soon as space could be made available), alongside the Stinson preschool that has been at that site for the past 6 years. I am a proponent of preschool inclusion in the District, but this interim step leaves me with questions: 1) if they are both still private preschools, why give up parental convenience of the BC PUD school, close to Bolinas housing; 2) why have two private programs right next to each other in Stinson; 3) what would space and finances look like; 4) how would administrative differences be resolved? Further discussion?

The Board decision to move forward with preschool inclusion led to passing a Resolution to form a Facilities Committee to determine how we will house the additional children. This committee has had one meeting, and will have another tomorrow at 3:15 in the 3rd grade classroom on the Bolinas Campus. Community input on this is crucial, as one of the plans put forward would include major reconstruction of the Bolinas campus, including razing the Quesada multipurpose building and replacing it and the art shops with a gymnasium. The art shops would be rebuilt along with two new class rooms. This major rebuild would have huge cost implications and require passage of a Bond measure. In addition to the Marin building permits, it would require review by the Coastal Commission, and because this would be on an earthquake faultline, and because the new shops would need to pass updated ADA constraints, I see this as becoming a very extended planning process. The big question: would it improve the teaching/learning of the students of our pre-K, K-8 school? Would a gymnasium be better placed for community use at Mesa Park so the school didn’t have to take on the burden of additional upkeep? Should we encumber ourselves with such a large debt? Could we house preschool with a more modest construction project at the Stinson site? These are just some of the questions that come to mind, and they deserve the due diligence necessary for such an undertaking. That’s what the facilities committee is charged to do. This discussion is on the fast track, requiring a Board decision soon, to get this measure on the ballot in November. That means deciding in the next few weeks. That is extremely fast for a decision of such import. I encourage the members of the Bolinas and Stinson communities to join in this discussion.

Beth's bakes a bit of soul into Mill Valley

By Christina Mueller

BETH SEFER'S PAIN IN PASTRY. As a baker, childhood, she dreamed of one day having her own shop. After building a career making cakes and cookies for a deli, she decided to open her own bakery in downtown Mill Valley.

Inside the tiny store front stands a counter topped with croissants ($3.50), scones ($2.50) and muffins ($2.75), the wall shelves filled with granola ($7.99 a pound). Freshly-baked rolls, pastries and cakes occupy the wedge of space in the middle of it all, a wide doorway provides a view of the busy kitchen where every item sold at Beth's is crafted and cooked. Every item "except the nuget and the cornhole" that is, Seferman laughs.

Morning and evening, instantly when you sit down on the small bench outside with a croissant and a cup of coffee. The coffee ($1.50, hand-roasted daily by House of Coffee in San Francisco's Outer Sunset, mom and Jeff, a perfect partner for the light, flavored the vegan version. The food is light and refreshing, but it's easy to sit down and enjoy more than one cup of coffee, which is the owner's signature drink.

The mix of Caribbean and North American influences in the banana fritters, the black bean quesadilla, combined by a rice and noodle dish and finished with a sweet and soft stump, made it a unique and unqiue-ly delicious one.

Seferman got her start as a professional pastry chef making the distinctive versions of pain au chocolat at Bouchon in Berkeley more than 30 years ago. More than ten years in style and from corn syrup, her pecan pie ($5.95, $11.90) tucked a bit dry and wilted its first Friday. But slide your fork through the top layer of crispy pastry, each piece of the pecan and a layer of caramelized sugar, and you'll find the signature crust and you may be left speechless at the artful, not to mention, combination of European technique and American filling.

Stop in on Saturday when the special is Nick's waffle ham and cheddar ($3.99) or sample Seferman's Southern roofs Fridays when she makes her name's Frío pie with "Texas chili and all the cornbread." The folks at the Mill Valley Cafe chuckled, "You take the amount of butter in the recipe and you double it," grins Seferman.

Beth is a European-American baker with a bit of soul. Classic French and Italian flavors, mixed and matched with the flavors of the American South, is beyond, than blended to suit the local community to be wondrous effect. In that way and otherwise, Beth's Community Kitchen truly lives up to its name.

Christina Mueller writes about food, cuisine and culture — for local and national publications as well as the secret Boxelder Project. Send her an email at cmmueller@msn.com.

Experience caterers Beth Seferman (right) and Beth Seferman, owner of Beth's Community Kitchen, share a laugh during prep time in the kitchen at the Mill Valley bakeries.

And a Goat's eggs, balanced the egg natural sweetness with the bitter connector of the spinach, Beth's signature buttermilk crust added crunch. Simply seasoned, seasonal vegetable soup ($5.50) featured carrots and kale. It's a vegan soup, but Seferman will add (request) and Parmesan for the gluten- and dairy-tolerant.

Named for her creator, Beth Seferman, Espe's tanaka's (two for $9), a vegan and a chicken tamale) are handmade California-style and prepared fresh daily. Chip- lin, an herbaceous leaf embedded in corn masa and wrapped in a corn husk, is also a specialty.
