Bo: 21st Century Monarch Sanctuary?

We know Bolinas is special - and the 1% fraction of Monarch butterflies that come to the Central Coast know it too! The generation of Monarchs that post-pone becoming sexually active adults, in order to keep their protective fats and migrate to their ancestral overwintering groves, is now gathering in the evergreen trees among us.

Historically they have come to the coast for the relatively mild winters. Here in Bolinas, because of our protective tree-lined ravines with thick insulating ground covers, they come to cluster together. They seek protection from the cold wind and rain; where there is nearby water and nectar sources, morning or afternoon sun and above all, peace and quiet.

During this year's November counts, citizen scientists with the Xerces Society tragically estimated only 2500 individuals had arrived. Even worse, some Monarchs have had a hard time after their difficult journey through the smoke to get here.

It's with heavy hearts that we must report last week's cold weather and rains, along with a possible predator or local disturbances, emptied one of the groves we are monitoring. Gathering corpses of more than thirty Monarchs for analysis was especially horrible.

As late as the 1980's they were arriving in numbers in excess of 85,000 individuals. Our current counts reflect that the present population is diminished to a small fraction and that they are struggling.

We are appealing to Bolinas to help our remaining Monarch's survive. Let residents and observers come together to protect and manage the groves! How can we help the butterflies return to Bo for generations to come?

We hope the missing clusters have found refuge elsewhere. We are looking for them and would appreciate any news of their whereabouts.

While witnessing and recording evidence of their precipitous decline, we are also trying to answer a central question: How might we aid the recovery of Monarchs who are overwintering? How can Bolinas sustain the seasonal arrival and presence of this unparalleled wonder of the natural world?

Can Bolinas, with its loving history of planning and organizing on behalf of the natural environment, now rally, and come together to take action on behalf of the butterfly? As Bolinas once chose to become a California Quail Refuge, can we now become a Monarch Sanctuary?

We don't like to end the week's column with foreboding alone, so we invite everyone to look for the Monarchs when the sun is out; sunning and nectaring on flowers. If clusters are discovered please tread lightly, speak softly, take pictures if possible and do alert the Xerces Society - address below.

Their clusters can be quite easily disturbed, but it is such a mysterious and magical treat to look up at a Cypress,

Anny Owen, Composer to Watch

Who knew that our immensely talented and hardworking school music teacher is also an emergent and promising composer? I just had the privilege of hearing the score from Act I of Anny's opera-in-progress, "Bach's Daughter", performed at a house concert by piano, woodwind quartet, and string quintet. Wow! Johann Sebastian himself would be impressed with the beauty, creativity, and power of this transcendent work, especially the counterpoint interweaving of melodies that carries one along into the mood and revelation of the story.

The story is in fact Anny's own life story, from her musical upbringing, to capture into an abusive marriage, escape, and ultimate emergence into fulfillment. Personal trauma can indeed inspire great artistry, and I've seldom heard and felt this force so strongly as in Anny's intense and moving music. It's also an important story for our time, highlighting the injustices and perils perpetrated upon women in our culture, and offering hope and courage to those struggling for respect and equality. Still, Anny's son Tony from that marriage got up at the end of the performance and spoke of his father and the need for compassion and forgiveness.

Go have a listen, on <Soundcloud.com> under Anny Densmore, where there are four beautiful excerpts, best heard in the order they appear in the score, namely: "Sisters", then "Winter's End", "Bach's Daughter Mix", and "Motherhood in Peril". If you're as impressed as I am, help bring this important work into full production by contributing at <GoFundMe.com> under "Bach's Daughter". For questions about the work, e-mail Anny's longtime friend who helped her launch this performance: <KimBender7@gmail.com>.

THREE GREAT THINGS ABOUT THIS PLACE...

- Anny Owen-Densmore's preview last weekend of a portion of 'Bach's Daughter,' her opera-in-the-making—a major piece of musical art.
- Bolinas's home-grown Winter Faire, always a chaotic delight. It seemed busy (and noisy) every time I looked in. Looked like a big success.
- The annual Amazing Grace Music Store Christmas party & Old Time Music Jam, coming up this Friday in San Anselmo. A great way to celebrate the season.

--Ned Riley

Pine or Eucalyptus tree that seems to have old branches with dead leaves, and watch it come to life with the bright orange beating of wings. A breeze, a hawk passing over, a sharp noise or the arrival of an additional butterfly to the group, sets the entire cluster of butterflies a-flutter. Our California Winter Solstice red and green - the best Christmas Tree ever!

Our next articles will discuss the Monarch overwintering grove structure and habitat, good nectar plants and attempt to address the controversial planting of milkweeds.

Thank you for reporting any Monarch findings and observations to The Xerces Society (www.xerces.org) and locally to Mia Monroe or Aurora at <auroramahassine@icloud.com>

YES!! Double your pleasure! Double your fun!
It's true, Bolinas DOES celebrate back-to-back-weekend holiday craft faires; a tradition now in it's 26th year. We hope you will join us for another festive gathering, at the Community Center, this Saturday and Sunday, 10-6. Join friends and neighbors, from near and far, in a festive marketplace, filled with treasures to gift others and for your own personal enjoyment. Come for lunch & dinner; Mirta is cooking (yum!) as a benefit for the BCC. Marcella is bringing her awesome treats; Roger will serve his famous hot apple cider; plenty to enjoy while you relax in the World Café. We invite you to support the fine efforts of this creative community endeavor as we wrap up another year and look forward to the new one around the corner. More details, in the next Hearsay issues. See you there, flower sierra

The Annual Dance Palace Sing-Along Messiah (Handel) is this coming Sunday at 3pm. There are advanced tickets on the website. One of the four soloists is the fabulous Nikola Printz. Her resume is extensive! Some of her roles include Rosina (Barber of Seville), Rosina (Il trionfo Dell'Onore), Dorabella, Cherubino, Flora in La Traviata as well as premiering the role of Alice, in a new opera "Pretty little room" as part of the 901 Opera Showcase. She has performed with Opera Memphis, Opera Modesto, and the West Bay Opera (to name a few.). We are very lucky to have her and hope you have the opportunity to come and appreciate her fine artistry. Best, Molly Maguire, conductor

WHAT HAPPENED

12-10-18 Monday Morning Recap
Week-in-Review from Jennie Pfeiffer-Riley

It was another busy week in town, ending with a super Winter Faire, and in a line from StuArt's song, "It was the best one yet!", a delight for us all. I got many updates for the 868 Plus Phone Directory so I am scrambling to get them plugged in and ready for printing. Still didn't get all the response from the business ad listings, so not quite sure what to do about that. I will have to drop those ads without updates by next Friday, so please contact jenniepfeifferr@gmail.com to let me know ASAP.

Calling this a Winter Faire rather than Christmas Faire is a good effort to make the holidays more all-inclusive, but it is still a gift-buying event, so hard to shake that tradition. We still have Santa there, and Christmas trees, and all the Christian songs, so there still needs to be some balance. I was thinking there could be a costumed elf with a menorah headdress to balance the elf with the Christmas tree hood (which was adorable, by the way). I think there needs to be input from multi-faith representatives and I'm afraid I don't fit that description. Though I have a great deal of faith in the overall good of the species, I have very little faith in organized religion.

School matters have been in the news this past week. As always I am eager to hear all sides of an issue before passing judgment, so I am looking forward to Tuesday's Board meeting. I'm hoping we can all remember that manners matter, and kindness counts. I will report on what transpires in next week's column.

Otherwise, whatever your spiritual choice, I hope this season brings all the best, with peace, love, and better treatment for our neighbors at the border. jp
