Bolinas Community Center Board Meeting May 18, 2013

Ayn Plant – Temporary Secretary

President's Report: Beginning with the singing of the Bolinas Community Center song. Minutes were approved with some amendments.

Treasurer's Report: All in all we are doing fine. Gave a general overview and talked about each event having a separate line. Spot on with our budget.

Manager's Report: Art & Garden took in $7,728, total expenses $1,700 plus salaries. Made about 5,000. It was a beautiful event. Not as well attended as last year, it was decided not to have event on earth day weekend. Go back to one talk a day. Discussed the possibility of using Memorial Day for the event. BBQ and Blues, $1,900 net. Suggestion to have someone on the board to take over advertisement for events. StuArt volunteered to follow up with the Hearsay. He does the sign board at the nursery and the blue board by the library. He will put up a sandwich board at Brighton. We need a Volunteer coordinator. Discussion to advertise in the Hearsay for an internship. Discussion on cost various projects. We took in 1,400 from the Free Box Follies. Working on sound permanent sound booth. It would take around 1,500 to get the sound booth up so that a tech would just press buttons and it's on. Want to get rid of existing light board and getting our own that will work with existing dimmers, new dimmers, and Dance Palace dimmers. Need more dimmer packs.

1,900 from BBQ & Blues + 1,400 Free Box Follies =
3,300 now in sound and light fund.

Kitchen update. At $17,000 at the kitchen fund, $450 on upgrading kitchen lights. Sinks all cabinets to side all taken out. Leaving the stove alone now. Installing new hand sink, a three compartment sink, and a third separate vegetable sink, all by commercial code per the county. Have top for sink. Under counter frig. Middle counter is 30" x 8' work space. StuArt is working on the good bye song for the existing kitchen. The floor needs to be fixed but due to budget constraints only the flooring under the new sinks is being replaced. FRP has been installed on walls and the total bid for the sinks, floors and walls is $7,200. Jenny motioned to accept this bid. The motion carried. We discussed having lockable storage, locking the piano closet. Renters need to have their goods secured. Suggestion to keep the piano out. Kids should be able to use it. Put it out in hall. That will allow for more locked storage. Jeff will look into piano tuning and a latch. StuArt will work with Jeff. Need to sell the speakers. Jenny will check with her son.

WEEKLY WRAP & RECAP 7/22/13

From Jenniepfeiffer Riley

Well for sure the best part of this week was seeing Jim Vest come back into town after weeks of intensive in-hospital chemo and radiation treatments. It was a very enthusiastic group of Jim Vest fans that gathered across from the nursery on Friday, with a banner and signs to let him know how good it is to have him back home. He had a big smiling face and surprisingly strong voice and handshake. Molly Maguire has volunteered to coordinate the food calendar for meals for the Vest's while they are going through this difficult uphill climb, so if you have some time and ability, they could use your help.

The weekend's mega yard sale at the hardware store lumber yard had some amazing items, reasonably priced. It's a perfect flea market venue, so I'm thinking it might be fun to join forces, merging with the 2nd Saturday Sale and have a regular rummage event in that large open space. Maybe we could form a core group of interested people to help make it happen.

Saturday's Bolinas Community Center Board meeting was short and productive, mostly about planning for the upcoming Labor Day event, which always seems like it's far away, but in the blink of an eye, here it comes. Labor Day Monday is on the 2nd this year, so right there at the beginning of the month. It's not too early to think about ways to help out with food or silent auction, or music. Other topics of discussion at the meeting included an update on what remains to be done to finish the paint job on the building, which is looking really good and fresh for Labor Day; and also, some information about plans for better chair racks. YES! Anyone who has ever helped put chairs away after an event at the Center - and that's almost all of us - will be happy to have a better system for storing the chairs. The kitchen remodel is coming along well, and the Center is being used more in a variety of ways, making a lively congregation place for our town, and with the new park, a great feel to the heart of town. Lia and Randi are doing a fabulous job keeping things on track.

That's all for now. Next week I'll have some thoughts on the Drakes Bay Oyster issue. I'm seeing many support signs up and I'm not sure why. I'd like to hear more about it. jp Discussed Memorial Day and jobs folks volunteered for. Lia out of office June 11 – July 11.

Development Director's Report: Discussed the grants applied for. MCBG for kitchen remodel was declined. Both grant proposal request for funding the Sound & Light Project was declined.. Received 2,500 for Martine's once monthly Friday Night youth group from the West Marin Foundation.

New Business: ADA compliance. Ayn is exploring the options. Discussed the big heart in the back of the community center. Maybe do it again. Give people more opportunities to be creative.

HEARD IT AT THE HARDWARE

By Robin Bradford

"I know the human being and fish can co-exist peacefully."

George W. Bush

Yesterday, I left our fish bowl on my desk near an open window. The bowl is home to my five Goldfish, Joy, Chastity, Faith, Hope, and Larry. The fish, I reasoned, might like some fresh air and enjoy our spectacular view of the ocean.

Tragically, when I returned home, I discovered the fish were missing. Five distinct snail-like trails in the shape of Goldfish fins led from the bowl directly to the open window.

I ran outside to search. My office is on the second floor of our house, and not surprisingly, a dull, thudding panic like the tail-end of a three-day migraine set in almost immediately. To think my Goldfish took the leap made my adenoids twitch, my spleen ache, and my gallbladder throb. Larry is the most adventurous amongst this Glint, and often convinces the girls to plunge into things well-mannered young Goldfish have no business plunging into. I was fearful that this time, he'd gone too far.

My neighbor Walter keeps a close eye on the comings and goings on our block. Some might call him a "busybody," but I wouldn't go to that extreme. Besides, at that moment, I had nothing but lost fish on my agenda when I banged on Walter's door.

I could hear his television. Somebody was watching reruns of Paula Deen on The Food Network again, this time her nasally voice extolling the restorative power of Goldfish Fillets with a simple Beurre Blanc Sauce. My suspicions were immediately heightened. Walter was taken aback when he saw me and a little too quickly, rubbed his large, flour-flecked hands on his apron. "Oh, heh heh, how're you doing?"

"Cooking something, Walter? Dipping something in batter, perhaps?"

Walter giggled nervously. "Home from work early today, eh?"

"You haven't seen any fish walking around here lately, have you?"

He gulped and stared at the ground.

"Well, Walter?"

He blurted out, "You didn't call the Fire Department, did you?"

"The Fire Department? Why would I call the Fire Department when this is clearly a case for ...." I paused for effect.... "ANIMAL CONTROL!!"

Lifting my chin like Scarlett O'Hara, I made a quick and decisive turn. I wished I'd thought to change from my Levi's into something to better emphasize my twirling, because I'm quite expert at it. Funny where one's mind goes during times of crisis.

Walter rushed after me in a cloud of flour, sputtering, "Is there anything I can do to help?" I twirled back, regretting that my my blue crinoline with matching petticoat was at the cleaner's. "Don't make me laugh! YOU? HELP? It's a little late for that, isn't it, Walter!!" That was the moment I realized I might be twirling a few more times before finding the fish. I raced home, opened my closet and grabbed the first thing I could find. It was a floor-length strapless evening gown by Donna Karan, deep pink, encrusted with a bejeweled belt of rhinestones, a ruched bodice and a high slit up the left leg. I hadn't worn it since the opening of opera season, c. 1999, but this was no time to dwell on memories of Mozart.

I threw the gown on over my sweatshirt and made for the door. With no clue where the path might lead, but confident I'd be the best dressed person there, I consoled myself with the thought that even though I might be running in circles, my priorities had never been straighter.

I have no idea why I paused before running out the door. I suppose it was because a glimmer of something caught my eye. Staring at the first step of our staircase, I recognized the distinctive, tell-tale, tail-shaped markings. The Goldfish had taken the stairs?

I was confused. Larry never planned ahead far enough to even consider the stairs. But if the fish took the stairs DOWN, they could have just as easily taken them back UP. A tiny sliver of optimism leaked into my brain, coupled with an intense desire to baby and cuddle my fish. It was nearly overwhelming, but reason prevailed. No one likes a spoiled fish. A cautious approach was called for. If the fish had simply been out for an innocent stroll, they could freak at the sight of me and the tongue-lashing that might ensue. Or I could accidentally step on one. All was quiet as I entered my office -- a little too quiet. There on the desk, in the exact spot it had been earlier, was the bowl. The trail of fish fins had been wiped clean and my glass-topped desk sparkled like the packaging that only comes with a brand-spanking new Barbie Doll. I peered into the bowl.

Joy? Chastity? Hope - Faith - Larry! Oh thank goodness, all accounted for!!

But something was amiss, fishy, one could say. As if in a horrible nightmare, a devastating scene flashed before me. Voice trembling, my whimper rising to a shriek, "That's not Larry! What have you done with Larry!!!!!!"

Weeping, I collapsed on the floor. The girls merely swam, round and round and round, past their little ceramic castle, darting under their cracked ceramic bridge, not one of them with enough decency to make eye contact with me. But a life-altering epiphany was taking place. It was as though I was becoming one with the Goldfish, experiencing for the first time true empathy for their plight, which can be summed up in three words: Spine Crushing Boredom. I understood immediately why the girls had gotten rid of Larry.

Go To Health: Human Papilloma Virus and its consequences

Cervical cancer, detected by regular Pap smears before it becomes serious, is caused by a sexually transmitted virus. Nuns and lesbians don't get cervical cancer if they never have intercourse with men. Condoms offer some protection. Were you ever told this when you (or your partner) went for a Pap test? These facts were ignored for years by the medical profession and popular culture – perhaps because of the discomfort people feel about discussing the nitty-gritty of sex, perhaps because of ignorance. The papilloma virus (HPV) that causes cervical cancer can also cause cancers of the vagina, vulva, penis, anus and throat. Cervical cancer is the most common of these problems, but the number of throat cancers from HPV are now on the rise. The actor Michael Douglas made headlines recently when he told a British newspaper that his throat cancer had come from performing oral sex.

Cancers of the base of the tongue, tonsils and walls of the pharynx are becoming more common. A decade ago, people with head and neck cancers were smokers or heavy drinkers. Now only 20% are smokers or drinkers, and the other 80% have cancers caused by an HPV infection. This year an estimated 14,000 people in the US will be diagnosed with head and neck cancers; most of them will be between 40 and 50 years old, and 3 out of 4 will be men, according to Dr. Robert Haddad of the Dana Farber Cancer Institute. Haddad talks about 'an epidemic' of HPV-related head and neck cancers. If oral sex is a factor, the predominance of men may be because vaginal fluid has more virus than the surface of the penis.

There are two vaccines available against HPV infection – Gardasil and Cervarix. These vaccines protect against many of the some 100 strains of HPV, including the high risk strains HPV-16 and 18 which are a known cause of cervical, throat, anal and vaginal cancers. A study supported by the National Cancer Institute has just been published which showed that sexually active young women in Costa Rica had 93% protection against infection with HPV types 16 and 18, after receiving immunization with Cervarix.. Although the study did not include men, it is believed that they would get the same protection with this vaccine.

The Gardasil vaccine was approved by the FDA and the CDC (Centers for Disease Control) for girls ages 9-26 in 2009, and for boys in 2011. Cervarix has also received FDA approval, and may be even more effective. The vaccine is given by 3 injections over 6-12 months. There has been controversy about these vaccines because of reports of serious reactions after injection, but careful studies by the CDC do not show that these reports are valid. Most side effects consist of pain, redness, and swelling at the injection site, and occasional fainting, fatigue, headache, muscle pain, gastrointestinal symptoms, and joint pain.

Women are advised to continue having Pap tests for cervical cancer even after vaccination, as the vaccines are not effective against all strains of HPV. Men and women should know they should not ignore difficulty swallowing or feeling/seeing a lump in the throat or on a tonsil. Seek medical attention promptly if this occurs. Sexually active people should also be aware of many other types of sexually transmitted disease, including HIV/AIDS, syphilis, gonorrhea (rapidly becoming drug resistant), Chlamydia, Herpes et al. Condoms are very helpful but not foolproof for prevention. The birth control pill and IUD are highly effective against pregnancy but do nothing to prevent STDs.. Have you ever wondered why sex scenes in movies and television never involve a discussion of these potential problems? Is it still that controversial? We have calorie counts on some menus, and dire (small print) warning on cigarettes. But nothing is said about sex. Young women in college are initiating hook-ups without emotional involvement so they won't get derailed from their independent careers. The recent NYTimes article (7/12/13) about this did not mention STDs or birth control. Go figure.

This awakening, I realized, could lead to a deeper understanding, not just for Goldfish, but for species of all kinds, everywhere on the planet. It was slightly disappointing that Banana Slugs were the first species to pop into my head, rather than the unjustly maligned Walter -- although my second thought involved a scheme to avoid him until his emotions simmered down a little.

Carefully, I returned the fish bowl to its regular place on the coffee table in the family room. Chastity and Faith wanted to watch television and as I flipped the channel to River Monsters, their favorite show, I made a silent vow to change their water first thing in the morning, and a sweet, almost palpable feeling of well-being settled over our entire household.

The new fish calls himself Joe.

How to contribute to the Hearsay News in person

Come to the office at 270 Elm at Maple, behind the BPUD office on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays between 9:30 & 10:30 am to have your article appear the same day, and until 11:00 am for classified ads.

Ad forms are also available anytime in the small mailbox next to the Hearsay door. You can fill out the form and have your ad billed to you, or you can enclose payment (please note on your ad if you are paying cash in as they might become separated) & drop into door slot.

THREE GREAT THINGS ABOUT THIS PLACE...

(1) Being there in the crowd at the nursery to welcome Jim Vest back from the hospital. It's good to have him home.

(2) Another perigee full 'super' moon last night, covered by clouds. This one is called the 'Hay Moon,' 'Thunder Moon' or 'Buck Moon.'

(3) The sounds of peak summer busy-ness—everyone's hammering and sawing, gardening, tree trimming and fixing up.
