Neptune at Opposition Neptune, one of the four gas giants, is the outermost planet in the solar system - not including Pluto. Even at opposition, its closest approach to Earth, it is 2.678 million miles distant making it notoriously difficult to observe without binoculars or telescope, and then Neptune only appears to be a pinpoint of bluish light reflected by its methane gas atmosphere. On September 9th, Neptune will rise at approximately 7:00 p.m. local time in the east (98 degrees) and will remain visible all night until it sets in the west (262 degrees) just before sunrise.

WHITE ELEPHANT SILENT AUCTION

There are many ways to participate in Labor Day, but the silent auction is one of those great win win opportunities. The Community Center wins when there are great items to sell, as that helps us support all the wonderful classes and events that happen at the BCC. The donor wins by passing on some artifact that need to be released back to the community. Something way-to-nice to throw away, but for whatever reason (too full of memories or not enough time for your own garage sale) something you don't want to sell.

The white elephant is a reminder of Ganesha, the Hindu deity that has an elephant head, and multiple arms. Ganesha is the remover of obstacles. So if your stuff is weighing you down, bring the beautiful, useful, desirable items to the Community Center. We'll do our best to find someone who will love it.

P.S. You're donations are tax deductible, we'll be happy to give you a receipt.

WHAT HAPPENED

8-27-18 Monday Morning Recap
 Week-in-Review from Jennie Pfeiffer Riley

It was BACK TO SCHOOL week. Everybody and everything looked great - fresh, refreshed, good to go. Both campuses look beautiful, thanks to the summer's work of our excellent maintenance crew, Paul Gillis, Ben Lowrance, Sandy Doss, and Marty Brendel. The school Board of Trustees is looking forward to an exciting year for the families of our District, with lots of parental participation along with community support. The Board meets the second Tuesday of each month and meetings are always open to the public, with time and place posted on the District website, as well as the Point Reyes Light and here in the Hearsay News, keeping those lines of communication open.

We have some new personnel this year: Michelle Stephens, principal; and Gohar Yervandyan, team teaching with Don Jolley in the middle school. This year's class configuration is the same for the youngest at Stinson campus with Victoria Maier and Omar Rifkin guiding the littlest ones in the 4-year-old program; Cathy Nichelini-Jones with kinders. Lauren Pollak has the first graders. Second grade is now on the Bolinas Campus, paired with third and classroom teacher Rebecca Braun. Additionally on the Bolinas campus are grades 4, with Rachael Dressler; and that important transitional class of 5 & 6 under the guidance of Willow Regnery. Class sizes are in that excellent range of students between 12 and 20.

Otherwise, it's the same experienced quality staff: Mechelle Cattell as Resource Specialist; Rob Hodge as the science, technology, engineering, and math (STEAM) & garden coordinator; Nuria Lee, Ron Brown, Kathy Bustamante-Smith, and Janis Yerington in the art shops; Carlos Contreras, P.E.; Anny Densmore, Music; Kevin Pedersen, all-school tech person; Suki Ferrari coordinating the meal service; Grace Godino, Library; Maude Zimmer, Therapist; Janis Yerington, after school coordinator; and instructional assistants June Barbera & Colin Schlitt (middle school), Kathy Oakander & Karen Buckenmeyer (primary), Katie O'Callaghan (Resource).

In the office are: John Carroll, superintendent; Kirsten Starsiak, chief business official; Angelique Borges, District financial specialist; District administrative assistant, Johanna Scutt; and School administrative assistant, Kara Perras.

Thanks to all of these fine individuals who keep our learners supported, cared for and engaged. Jp

P.S. I love the downtown guerilla stop sign REVERSE SIGN WARS! Putting them up instead of taking them down! Keeps the County sign patrol off-balance. Hilarious! Another reason to love this town!

Where does it all go?

A lot of it winds up in five huge masses of plastic debris, called gyres, created by currents in the world's oceans. The largest of these swirling plastic stews is the Great Pacific Garbage Patch, formed by winds and currents between California and Hawaii. It's twice the size of Texas and "increasing exponentially," according to a study published earlier this year. A plastic patch along the North Atlantic between Virginia and Cuba is nearly as large. These five gyres cover as much as 40 percent of the planet's ocean surface. To clean up all five would take 1,000 boats filtering the water 24 hours a day for 79 years.

Oceans of plastic

What happens after an endless supply of plastic in consumer products winds up in the sea?

How bad is the pollution?

A garbage truck's worth of plastic enters the world's oceans every minute. All told, humanity has dumped up to 14 million tons of plastic pollution into the seas, and bits of it can be found from the water's surface down to its most extreme depths. You wouldn't know it looking over the side of a ship, since much of the waste has been broken down by waves and ultraviolet light into microplastics, particles often as small as a millimeter wide. But when researchers in 2015 analyzed more than a million pieces of trash in the Pacific, 99.9 percent of it was plastic. Scientists have no idea how long that will take to degrade—perhaps hundreds of years, if ever. By 2050, according to the World Economic Forum, there will be more plastic, by weight, in the ocean than fish.

Submitted by Pat Dickson

Where's it coming from?

Since plastic became incorporated into many consumer products in the 1950s, only about 21 percent has been recycled or incinerated. What makes plastic appealing—that it's not only cheap and versatile but also virtually indestructible—makes it a nightmare to dispose of, and about 3 percent of the plastic produced in coastal countries eventually enters the ocean. Fishing nets and other plastic fishing gear are a major source. So is lightweight plastic litter, which can be blown off garbage trucks, barges, and landfills, or deliberately dumped into rivers or sewer systems and carried out to sea. Many of the worst polluters are developing countries with rudimentary waste-management systems. China bears the greatest responsibility, accounting for about 30 percent of the global total, while the United States ranks 20th. A less obvious form of plastic pollution comes from microparticles found in products such as deodorant, toothpaste, and sunscreen that wash down drains. Many clothes are made with synthetic fibers, and one wash cycle can cause 200,000 fibers to escape into wastewater. As a consequence, the Hudson River in New York, for example, dumps about 150 million plastic fibers into the ocean every day.

Bo hardware seeks local owner

By Anna Guth

Hoping to own a viable business in Bolinas? Perhaps the hardware store is your ticket.

The current owners, Tom and Karen Dibblee, have listed the store, including its current inventory and equipment, for $399,000, and committed to only advertising the sale locally through at least September. One of their contingencies is that the new owner continue to sell hardware.

Ms. Dibblee, a Connecticut native, said that purchasing the store with her husband seven years ago has allowed them to live in Bolinas, where he has deep family roots. In recent years, his involvement has tapered off due to an illness, though Ms. Dibblee said it only sped up standing plans to retire by around six months.

The choice to sell is bittersweet, she said, but will allow her more time with her garden and grandchildren. She also serves on the board of the Bolinas Community Land Trust and does development work with the Kentfield School District.

"I love living in Bolinas, and owning the store has allowed us to do that, and to become involved in the town. The store has become a kind of hub, a positive reflection of all the good things in Bolinas," Ms. Dibblee said this week from behind the register, keeping one eye on customers who might need help.

The sale includes 12 outbuildings—including the lumber racks and equipment storage—on the property. The storefront and land is leased from Mike Aiken, who also owns the adjacent laundromat and Resource Recovery Center and whom Ms. Dibblee called "a great landlord."

The sale price includes as much as $250,000 in inventory, and Ms. Dibblee is offering to stay for an interim period to assist in the transfer. "I want someone here to be able to afford it, and I think someone with some knowledge of the community is important," she said.

The Dibblees themselves took on the store without a background in the hardware business, though they had an interest. He previously worked for Wells Fargo and later had his own firm, and she was a practicing psychotherapist and a jeweler with some retail experience.

"I've always been really interested in tools and how things are built," she said. "I learned how to mix paint, cut keys, drive a loader and a forklift, and all that other stuff that you don't ever think you are going to do when you are getting your psychotherapy degree—the practical side of life."

And she did discover some overlap between her first and second careers. "It's all about helping people to help themselves, to solve their own problems," she said.

In response to growing tourism in Bolinas, the Dibblees expanded the types of goods they carry to include more kitchenware, holiday gifts and toys. They also took strides to make prices affordable in order to bring in more locals.

"We've expanded essentially every department since we've been here, and added the whole front section of goods for the weekend customer," Ms. Dibblee said. "But there's still a lot of potential to go off in a whole new direction. For instance, there is a huge market for landscaping and gardening things that I've only begun to tap into."

A lumberyard was opened on the site in 1987 and, soon after, the town's hardware store moved to the lot from the Warehouse Building next to the post office.

The Dibblees initially bought the store with another couple, Bill Hamilton and Robin Bradford, in 2011, but bought the store out after several years. (Mr. Hamilton and Ms. Bradford now live in the East Bay.) Currently, the Dibblees employ four people part-time. Ms. Dibblee said that hopefully the new owners will want to keep them on, at least for an interim period.

"Nicer people you cannot find," Sharon Casey, who has worked there for two years, said of her employers.

Mark Fraser is a longtime Bolinas resident and committed customer who said he wouldn't be able to work on his house without the store. "They are very responsive: If they don't have it, they will get it for you," he said. "We need a local store somewhere we can go in town without having to make a huge trip over the hill or to Point Reyes. It's an institution."
