DELOVEALUTION A COMEDY

Greetings Bolinas, our play will perform this Friday and Saturday at 8:00 PM at the Bolinas Community Center!

If its possible to make a choice as to which night to come and see the show, I would recommend Friday as Saturday could be sold out!

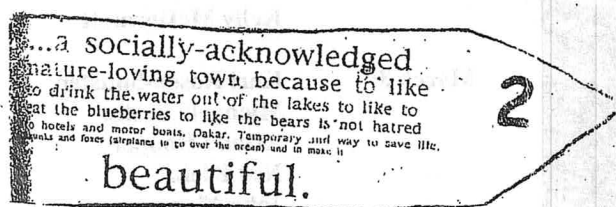

If Friday is sold out at least there will be Saturday to get in again to see the show. Being an optimist. . .you may call:

415-868-0686 to reserve seats!

I would like to thank the cast for their dedication and sacrifices to manifest this theatre work. Often driving at night during rain storms back and forth over the mountain upsurgng their lives and jobs to make rehearsals, this takes commitment.

I would also like to thank my wonderful neighbors and friends for their support and kindness and all the communities help in creating this play. Please come and enjoy DELOVEALUTION!

CLASSES HELP HOMEOWNERS ACCESS FUNDS

By Samantha Kimmey:

The county has allotted hundreds of thousands of dollars to help create more affordable housing—but how do homeowners actually access the funds?

A pair of workshops in Bolinas and Point Reyes Station over the next two months, and potentially a third in the San Geronimo Valley, will help answer that question and encourage more people to take advantage of locally available assistance, financial and otherwise. The workshops will include presentations on how to apply for assistance, both through the county and nonprofits.

“I think, up to this point it, has been hard to get the information to the people that need it,” said Frances McDormand, a board member of the Bolinas Community Land Trust who has helped to organize the workshops. “That’s why it’s so great there are so many organizations that are willing to collaborate on this.”

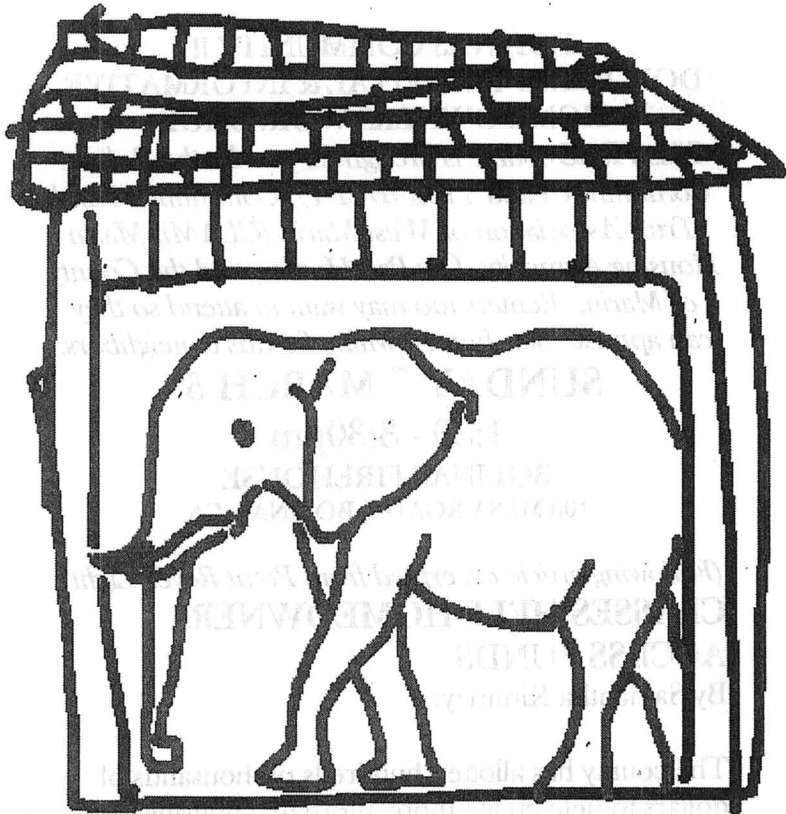

Arianne Dar, executive director of the Bolinas Community Land Trust, is looking forward to informing Bolinas residents through the workshops. “We’re working to help get our community access to these funds,” she said.

Generally speaking, Ms. Dar said, the loans “might go a long way” toward updating septic systems in Bolinas, a major roadblock when it comes to creating second units.

For Ms. McDormand, attendance at the workshops—which will include nonprofit leaders, the Marin Housing Authority, and Supervisor Dennis Rodoni—is a no-brainer.

“When you think of the people who are going to be in the same room offering information about the housing situation and offering solutions, why wouldn’t you want to be in that room? We all know what the problem is... We can actually help you.”

(Another workshop is scheduled for Sunday, April 2nd 1:30 - 3:30pm, Point Reyes Dance Palace).

"Screenagers" Film Screening

Friday, March 3, 5:30 PM to 8:30 PM Presented by the West Marin Coalition for Healthy Kids, WMS PTSA & ELAC groups. Are you watching kids scroll through life, with their rapid-fire thumbs and a six-second attention span? Physician and filmmaker Delaney Ruston saw that with her own kids and learned that the average kid spends 6.5 hours a day looking at screens. She wondered about the impact of all this time and about the friction occurring in homes and schools around negotiating screen time—friction she knew all too well. Through poignant, and unexpectedly funny stories, along with surprising insights from authors, psychologists, and brain scientists, SCREENAGERS reveals how tech time impacts kids' development and offers solutions on how adults can empower kids to best navigate the digital world and find balance. For more information call (415) 446-8587.

MAGDA

WE WHO ? WHO WE ? THEY WHAT ? WHAT THEY ?

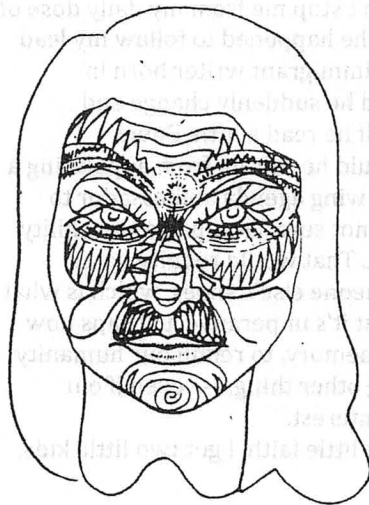

The Indians didn't stay here full time, they came to gather sea food and peace pipe and now we have a lending library town - half the population is travelling out there being tourists. If everyone came home at once there wouldn't be enough room and the simpleton operative of " now that I'm here you can't come in " just doesn't fit with some of the other ideas we're using, also the " I just arrived from some inconceivably other place, but I'm here now so I'll run things " won't do at all, nor will conventional elitism like : " I've been here longer so I know better " carry us and the Bolinas Border Patrol " stay away from here " stance is ugly and unworthy of us.

Since we ourselves spend part of our collective time elsewhere perhaps we'd best treat our tourists the way we'd like to be treated, no ?

The answer to the question of who is native/stranger lie in the culture and as one travels about the planet one cannot help observing that the more evolved the society the better the hospitality - the good places have good places for locals and strangers alike and the traveller / wanderer / nomad is welcomed/fed/housed/entertained and dispatched on his/her way yet the more defined the native aesthetic the more difficult for strangers to enter.

Could a Few Good Short Stories Save The Trump Presidency?

Aviya Kushner February, 2017
Forward.com (excerpt)

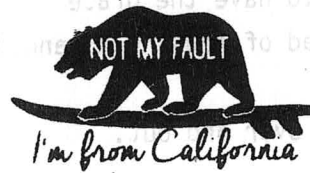

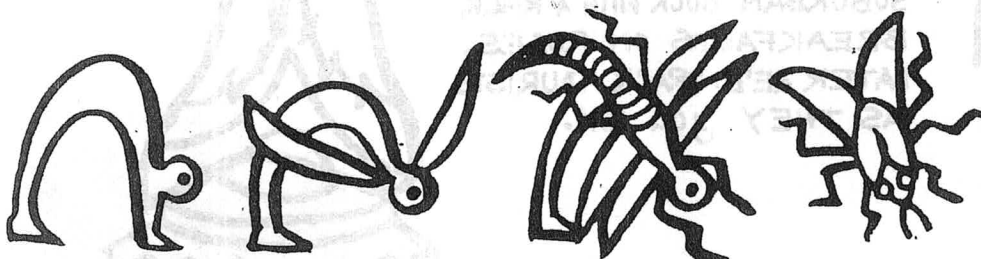

How do you manage to read stories with all the drama in American political life right now?

Even Donald Trump won't stop me from my daily dose of short stories. But Christ, if he happened to follow my lead and read one — say by an immigrant writer born in Mexico, for instance, would he suddenly change and disavow his f—king wall? If he read a little David Grossman or Amos Oz, would he refrain from appointing a guy with an extreme right-wing agenda ambassador to Israel? I think not. But I'm not sure Trump has any ability to read with an open heart. That would require some interest in standing in someone else's shoes, which is what reading fiction is about. But it's imperative, perhaps now more than ever in recent memory, to retain our humanity through reading — among other things — even if our current president has no interest.

I've got to keep at least a little faith, I got two little kids.

THEY GO OUT HOPPING, COME BACK FLYING
OR HANG SUSPENDED IN SPIDER WEBS.
EVEN IF THEY DON'T BITE, THEY SHIT EVERYWHERE
AND FALL DEAD INTO OUR HAIR.

Trump's Temperament

TO THE EDITOR:
Re "Donald Trump, Middle-School President," by Andrew Rosenthal (column, nytimes.com, Feb. 8):

Your comparison of President Trump to middle-school students is blatantly unfair — to middle-school students, that is. Though at times middle-school students are Trump-like in their blinding self-absorption, cruel ad hominem attacks and insatiable quest for attention by creating endless drama, they eventually grow up — unlike Mr. Trump. Despite their mercurial moodiness, middle schoolers express more joy in an hour than Mr. Trump has expressed in the four long weeks of his administration.

In these dark times we must remember that the survival of both middle schools and democracies requires the presence of adults in the room.
