

THE HEARSAY

A Brief for the Defense

Sorrow everywhere. Slaughter everywhere. If babies are not starving someplace, they are starving somewhere else. With flies in their nostrils. But we enjoy our lives because that's what God wants. Otherwise the mornings before summer dawn would not be made so fine. The Bengal tiger would not be fashioned so miraculously well. The poor women at the fountain are laughing together between the suffering they have known and the awfulness in their future, smiling and laughing while somebody in the village is very sick. There is laughter every day in the terrible streets of Calcutta, and the women laugh in the cages of Bombay.

If we deny our happiness, resist our satisfaction, we lessen the importance of their deprivation. We must risk delight. We can do without pleasure, but not delight. Not enjoyment. We must have the stubbornness to accept our gladness in the ruthless furnace of this world. To make injustice the only measure of our attention is to praise the Devil. If the locomotive of the Lord runs us down, we should give thanks that the end had magnitude. We must admit there will be music despite everything. We stand at the prow again of a small ship anchored late at night in the tiny port looking over to the sleeping island: the waterfront is three shuttered cafés and one naked light burning. To hear the faint sound of oars in the silence as a rowboat comes slowly out and then goes back is truly worth all the years of sorrow that are to come.

The Studio At The Stinson School

Dear Jenny,

That room was built as a studio for a "caretaker" for the Stinson Beach School. Yes, of course, the needs of a school change, but the crisis here and now is housing. The school asked for help and has a small answer within its grasp. Tell me about the person who wouldn't prefer to sleep on that precious campus next to the Lagoon in the quiet of the night rather than in a camper or on the beach, and perhaps, if one were even an employee of the school. Or, maybe to save miles of commute time and gas. It was built when there were 220 students and it wasn't used as a storeroom or pull out space. Now with about 1/3 of those students, about 85, surely there is a spot in the heart of the Board to allow a teacher/aide/local person to live in that studio. It isn't perfect, but it is a precious space. I would be happy to have this letter published in the Hearsay to open the discussion. Please feel free to publish this note.

Best,

Beth Perry

Local hospital essential

I would like to share my appreciation for Dr. Mary Whitney and the staff at Point Reyes Animal Hospital. I have been taking my beloved animals there for some 20 years. Recently I called them, sobbing, as I was rushing up from Bolinas with my dog Shaduke in an irreversible crisis. The staff was so kind. Dr. Castro leaned into the car and gently gave him the shot that ended his suffering.

Just months earlier, I lost my Nikki. Both were rescued dogs grown old; they were such good beings. We went to the clinic for health maintenance, emergencies and final breath. It speaks volumes that over the years, all my dogs eagerly went into this clinic, happy to see the staff who are so warmly invested in their patients. For us animal lovers, having such a good veterinary hospital is essential.

Poetry Reading

Sweet memories of the good old days at Charlie Ross's birthday party & poetry reading on Sunday evening at the Community Center.
 Overcome with nostalgia for the old Bolinas when the poetry scene was rampant and poetry readings and publishing were happening.
 It was the days of plain paper copiers and long arm staplers poetry fanzines really with emphasis on local poets.
 Smithereens Press - that was Charlie & Mary Lu documenting the Bolinas zeitgeist in poetry and we had Joanne Kyger defining the scene, which was erudite and fun-loving

On Sunday night, Charlie and Mary Lu had all the Smithereens Press poetry books spread out on tables in the Community Center
 I spied three of my own Smithereens publications:

Nostalgia overtook me as I remembered those times, that mindset.
Jim Carroll Days indeed.

Harmonic Convergence hah!

Revitalization of Downtown Bolinas, what?
 as if a fixer-upper could become "The Leaning House of Pizza"

The evening of poetry/history was summed up by Dan Devires summed up the spirit of those times:

 Thank you, Charlie & Mary Lu & Smithereens for making the scene in Bolinas.

Closing in on downtown Bolinas parking measure

By Anna Guth

The Bolinas Community Public Utility District suggested some significant tweaks to the recent proposal from District Four Supervisor Dennis Rodoni to institute new parking regulations on downtown streets in Bolinas.

For the past year, the utility district and the supervisor have been bouncing ideas for possible ways to address the growing numbers of people living in their cars or leaving large vehicles in limited downtown parking spaces, often for months on end.

At a public meeting last month, Supervisor Rodoni addressed a series of suggestions from the utility district, discounting many of them in consideration of timely implementation, legality and enforceability. He also unveiled one new idea: ban parking overnight on one side of Brighton and Park Avenues between the hours of 11 p.m. and 5 a.m. but give residents special parking permits for the other side.

Last Friday, BCPUD's board of directors held a special meeting to consider that proposal, and to discuss drafting it as an advisory ballot measure in time for the November elections. The board ultimately came up with a counter proposal, which it sent to Supervisor Rodoni and published in the Bolinas Hearsay News on June 29.

According to the board, the supervisor's proposal would not garner community support for a number of reasons.

These included that prohibiting all overnight parking on one side of Brighton and Park Avenues "would severely and negatively impact homeowners, tenants and coastal visitors [and] guests of the homes on those streets as there is insufficient street parking there already for those folks," according to its letter.

The board wrote that many downtown events run well after 11 p.m. and that limiting parking would be "highly unpopular." Lastly, the board expressed concern that the proposal would effectively move long-term parkers to Wharf Road, shifting the problem to another already congested area of downtown.

As an alternative, BCPUD outlined a proposal it contends could be supported by a clear majority of the community: ban overnight parking only between 2 and 6 a.m. with an exception for all 94924 residents, for whom there would be a parking permitting system, and apply that ban not only to Brighton and Park Avenues but also to Wharf Road.

The board suggested that local permits be fashioned as placards, similar to the blue handicap parking cards. It also pointed out that permits would need to be accessible to the residents' guests and patrons of businesses of all types, including short-term rentals.

The clock is ticking for a proposal to be finalized. The board's stated goal is to have the language for the advisory ballot measure hammered out with Supervisor Rodoni and his staff in advance of the next regular board meeting on July 18.

The deadline for submission for November ballot measures is Aug. 10.

Reached this week, Supervisor Rodoni said he is evaluating BCPUD's counter proposal. "In general, I'm very supportive of what the BCPUD is proposing," he said. "What I am doing now is evaluating it with county counsel and our other departments to make sure it is legal and also enforceable—and that we are able to implement it in a timely way."

The supervisor said that if BCPUD's proposal did not fall within the scope of a parking ordinance that allows street-by-street rules in unincorporated Marin, the county would have to consider drafting an entirely new ordinance, which could take longer than the one-year timeline he had proposed for his initial plan.

For now, the county is preoccupied with another enforceability issue in Bolinas, which Supervisor Rodoni has said must be ironed out before any new rules are implemented. Recently, the county discovered that the vehicle code cannot be enforced on the non-county-maintained roads in Bolinas. Staff have drafted an ordinance to close the loophole, but are waiting to find out if a California Coastal Commission permit is necessary before the item is placed on the Board of Supervisor's calendar.

The BCPUD board, in its letter to the supervisor, addressed a common concern
